Buschmann. Mrs. Moore said that the girl appeared in good spirits when she left her house. She arrived at Buschmann's house about I o'clock. Mrs. Burkhardt was absent at her store, No. 1549 Benton street. Mrs. Buschmann and the girl's mother thought that she was employed as a bookkeeper in the Century building, but they do not remember, they say, who her daughter said employed her. When Mrs. Buschmann asked the girl why she was not at work she replied that she was given a holiday.
"I told Jennie to come in and make her-self at home," said Mrs. Buschmann, "and that I was glad she came, because I wanted to go to her mother's store in the after-noon for some groceries. She said that she would go with me and that she was tired and would rest until I was ready to start. and would rest until I was ready to start.
I did not notice that her actions were peculiar, but in the light of this tragedy I can see that the girl must have made up her mind to end her life. When she entered the house she carried her portrait in her hand. She gave it to me and asked me to give it to her mother.

"Mother is the one who should have my termed asked the top of the start of the picture,' she said. She had taken the picture away from her mother a few months before when angry, and I supposed she felt sorry and brought it back. I told her to e the picture on the mantel, where her nother would see it when she came home.

This she did.

"Jennie asked me to be sire and wake her." "Jennie asked me to be sire and wake her. To you think you will be able to wake ne?" she asked. I told her I would try mighty hard and left her. She had been in the room about an hour when my little white dog commenced to how on the side porch. I went out the back door and chased the dog into the back yard. As I entered the house the Newtoundland dog howled mournfully. I called to Jennie and asked her if she could sleep with all that noise. I think she answered me, but I am not certain, A minute later I heard a heavy fell, rushed into the front room and found the girl lying unconscious on the floor, and an empty buttle which had contained carbolic neid on the floor at her side.

State Superintendent of Schools Upholds the Plan Which Has Resulted in Great Benefit to the State.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Jefferson City, Ma., Oct. 12 - Superintend ent of Schools W. T. Carrington to-day addressed the following letter to the Globe Democrat relative to the school fund o Missouri:

"From the fact that you have at all time manifested great Interest in the schools. I conclude that you will be glad to publish the following: "In 1872 the State Legislature found that the State ow d the school fund about 1900,-600, and issued a "State certificate of in debtedness" to the school fund, a State bond bearing 6 per cent and fixing a definite date of payment. This recognized the State's obligation and put it into tangible form. "In 1875 the State Board of Education, under the authority of the Constitution, sold its United States bonds and purchased State bonds, Considering that United States bonds were above par and State bonds below par that the State bonds bore a higher rate of interest, this transaction increased the permanent funds about $60,000, and the annual apportionment to the schools more than $50,000. Another fact worth consideration here is that the State showed its faith in its own bonds by investing its permanent school funds in them. The result was that our State bonds were soon at par, and have never since been below par.

Himos has incorporated her senool securities 'Land Contution by providing a permanent and perpetual levy directly for that purpose.

"So far as I can discover, no State outside of New England has any of its school funds in vested in United State bonds. New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Indiana have invested mainly in municipal and have invested minibled out in small sums, mainly investing in 'School District Bonds,' This accounts for the erection of many needlessly large and fine school buildings in the West. Texas hase its available school funds invested in State bonds bearing 5, their trust funds similarly invested.

Terms of Rice's Second Will.

NEPUBLIC SPECIAL, New York, Oct. 12.—Following the filing to-day of the first will of the late million aire William M. Rice, in which the pro-ject of Rice institute at Houston is made the residuary legatee of the estate, now con servatively estimated at $8,000,000, Captain McClusky of the detective bureau has made public the second will, the original of which is in the possession of Albert T. Patrick der which the lawyer becomes the chief beneficiary.

The second will names Willam Rice, Jr., of Hyatt, Tex., and James A. Baker of Houston, Tex., as executors. Strangely enough, Mr. Baker is fighting this will. The executors are to receive 5 per cent commission on all money hardled, except $250. 600, which is bequeathed to the William M. Rice Institute for the Advancement of Literature, Science and Art in Houston

Literature, Science and Art in Houston.

In the second will more liberal provision is made for the relatives of the testator than in the first will. It is stipulated at the same time that if these relatives contest the will, they shall lose all interest in the estate.

The vital clause is contained in the eleventh paragraph, which names Lawyer Patrick as the residuary legatee. The will is dated June 30, 1800, and is duly witnessed.

What the next step will be in the struggle for the old man's millions cannot be determined until Patrick is released from prison. He expects to find a bondsman in a day or two, and his counsel is authority for the statement that he will insist upon his rights in the premises.

PIONEER OF ST. LOUIS DEAD. Mrs. Mahala Elton, Cousin of

Pierre Chouteau. Mrs. Mahala B. Elton, one of the ploneers of St. Louis, a cousin of Pierre Chouteau and the mother of John Elton and Mrs. B. H. Berry of No. 4239 Cook avenue, Mrs. B. H. Berry of No. 4239 Cook avenue, died yesterday morning at the home of her son, James Elton, in Wellsville, Mo., where she had lived for the last thirty years. She was 83 years old. The funeral will be held this afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Berry, No. 4239 Cook avenue, to Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. Elton lived for many years in St. Louis. When her husband, Henry Elton, died she went to live with her son in Wellsville, Mo. Mrs. Elton has visited here frequently and is well known to older residents. She has been ill for about six months, and, owing to her advanced age, her death was not unexpected.

GEORGE ADE IN TOWN.

First of His New Fables Will Appear in Sunday's Republic. George Ade of Chicago, author of the amous "Fables in Slang," and now also a writer of plays, is in St. Louis for a few writer of plays, is in St. Louis for a few days. The principal reason for his visit is that he wishes to "brush up" some of the lines of his play, "The Night of the Fourth." and also to consult Messrs. Matthews and Buiger in regard to a new play that he is writing for them.

Mr. Ade's "Fables" have been as popular with newspaper readers as were the "Mr. Dooley" interviews when they first appeared. The Sunday Republic has perfected arrangements with Mr. Ade for the exclusive rights in St. Louis to publish his "Fables," and the first of the series, "What Happened to the Men Who Visited the Woman's Ciub," will appear in the Sunday Republic to-morrow.

Not Christian Scientists. Not Christian Scientists.

In the account given last Wednesday of the death of Alfred Moore, who was fatally injured by falling upon a broom-handle at his home in Tuxedo Park, the statement was made that Mr. Moore's family believed in Christian Science and that the accident was part of the design of Providence. This was incorrect. The members of the family are not Christian Scientists. They believe in Christianity, and the victim was inclined to think that the accident was from the hand of Providence.
